X-Entertainment
<http://www.x-entertainment.com>

Children of the 80s, no longer must you walk in shame. Just as the "Greatest Generation" relived its defining moments in Dan Rather's bestseller, you too can relive the greatest pop culture atrocities ever committed, on X-Entertainment.com. Featuring video games, movies, toys, and miscellaneous 99 cent store bargain buys, X-Entertainment is the perfect way to waste an afternoon in your parents' basement on the broadband connection they're paying for. -Dave Conklin

Crappy kid's art work
<http://www.fleetmack.com/~maddox/irule.html>

Let's face it, kids are dim-witted, annoying, and frequently smell of rancid dairy product. If it weren't that children grew up to become successful, self-important, backstabbing, charitable-donation making adults with a severe BO problem, we'd still be gutting them and offering their tiny innards to false deities, Inca style. Check out this site for the next best thing, that is, if you haven't been forwarded it by now. Children create the most futile crap and this guy is a callous detractor. Let the toddlers have it. -Anthony Q. Casasnovas

The Official Ninja Website
<http://www.realultimatepower.net>

And I quote, "Ninjas can kill anyone they want! Ninjas cut off heads ALL the time and don't even think twice about it. These guys are so crazy and awesome that they flip out ALL the time.

I heard that there was this ninja who was eating at a diner. And when some dude dropped a spoon the ninja killed the whole town. My friend Mark said that he saw a ninja totally uppercut some kid just because the kid opened a window. And that's what I call REAL Ultimate Power!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!" The site reads a little better than a back issue of Foul, albeit with a focus on ninjas. -Anthony Q. Casasnovas

NX2
<http://www.nx2.com>

You're at the office and bored as hell. What to do? Most online games are just inane. What could possibly make these games more exciting? Why, gambling against your friends of course! For a small fee, NX2 will allow you to play keyboard-controlled games based on classics such as Tapper, Tetris, Dig Dug and the like versus your pals for cash, their cash. Screw office football pools. This is the future of legitimately stealing your coworker's clams. If you have the keyboard tapping skills and some friends with disposable incomes, NX2 might just be your path to weekly beer money. -Robert Johnson

Rock and Roll Confidential
<http://www.rockandrollconfidential.com>

Sometimes Rock is just as exciting as an actual rock. That is why Rock and Roll Confidential exists. Have you ever been dragged to see some local band that was supposedly good, but sounded like the cry of a walrus being slowly lowered into a deep fryer? Chances are, this site has identified them and delivered them the shame they are due. Rock and Roll Confidential prides itself on taking jabs at the "cool" world of rock and, well, roll. Be sure to check out "The Daily Douchebag" (the daily lame-ass band), "The Hall of Douchebags" (an archive of lame-ass bands), "Fake Rock News," and "The Creepout Club" (a parody of <http://www.makeoutclub.com>). The next time you're invited to see a band, keep in mind they just might be "Douchebag" material. -Robert Johnson
